WHAT DID MISS GERTIE DRINK?
She Thought It Was Whiskey, but It Made Her Very Ill.

A Queer Case of Poisoning in a Bleeker Street Lodging-House.

Miss Gertie Jackson, twenty-seven years old, of 135 East Fifth-street, was found at 4 o'clock this morning at the Bleeker Street Lodging-house, suffering from the effects of poison which she took in mistake for whiskey. She was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital.

She was a good-looking young woman and came to the lodging-house at 11 o'clock last night. Her room was given her. In No. 27 the day clerk, who is Irish, sleeps.

Miss Jackson went to bed quite early. In the early morning hours she woke up feeling dry. She got up and went on a prospecting tour through the hotel for a drink. She had her hand on the door handle when she was seized by the doorkeeper, who was on the table were three bottles, two small ones and one larger, one that had a promising label.

Miss Jackson went in and grabbed them. She took them to her room, drank what was in the two small bottles and laid empty the third.

Instantly she experienced a feeling of internal revulsion and disorder that was not germane to whiskey. She staggered down stairs and collapsed in a chair by the night porter's door.

When saying she made no mistake. It was apparent, even to the clerk, annoyed as he was at her late coming, that she had drunk from the bottles. She was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital.

At the Mercer street station house Miss Jackson was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital. She was taken to the hospital at 11 o'clock this morning. She was taken to the hospital at 11 o'clock this morning.

Readers of next Sunday's WORLD will learn something of the largest Indian settlement in the United States.

JUSTICE FOR WILLIAMS.
The Brave Life-Guard Will Return to Atlantic City To-Day.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 10.—The WORLD's story of the injustice done young Jack Williams, the brave life-guard who, for a misdeed committed six years ago, was expelled from the beach, has been the subject of a letter from the life-guard association to the board of trustees of the Atlantic City Board of Trustees.

The letter, which was received at the board of trustees of the Atlantic City Board of Trustees, is a letter from the life-guard association to the board of trustees of the Atlantic City Board of Trustees.

POOR MEN AND GRAND JURIES.
Workingmen Greatly Excited by Foreman Carter's Utterances.

Hopes That the Clockmakers' Strike Will at Last Be Arbitrated.

There promises to be some very lively results from the recent action of the present grand jury in dismissing the complaint of conspiracy against certain manufacturers who initiated the strike by locking out the cutlers for joining a union.

Already the Clock-Cutters' Union is in arms, and it issued a circular this morning calling a special meeting at Patagonia Hall tomorrow for the purpose of protesting against the grand jury's action, and at the same time to reply to a published letter of Frank Rothschild, a member of one of the locking out firms.

The utterances of Foreman Carter, of the Grand Jury, to a World reporter yesterday, calling for the dismissal of the complaint, was a blow to the union, and a great deal of complaint was thrown overboard occasioned much comment among the men. Said one of the strikers:

"So Mr. Carter is 'not in favor of unions.' That's new for a laboring man to hear, emanating from the foreman of a grand jury."

"How in the world could we expect to get carried at the hands of such a body as led by Mr. Carter?"

"He is evidently opposed to the laboring man in every sense of the word, but the matter, thank God, does not end with Mr. Carter. It is our purpose to carry on complaint to the latter end and continue to fight for our right."

That they will come down to the effect that the manufacturers' Association has locked out the cutters, and that the cutters are now in a position to be recognized by the manufacturers' Association.

Over thirteen hundred union cutters, it was announced, would be practically thrown out of the market, but not one of them under no consideration recognize their lockout.

How feature developed to-day, when a prominent cutter told an EVENING WORLD reporter that the promised lockout would be carried out.

"The bosses say," he gleefully remarked, "that they will not lock out the cutters, but they will lock out the cutters. They will lock out the cutters, but they will lock out the cutters."

JOHN GRAHAM'S NEW OFFICE.
The Eccentric Old Lawyer Made a Special Deputy Sheriff.

Snug Berth in the New Court-House for Gen. Sickles's Old Crony.

Gen. Sickles has added another to the many eccentric features which have characterized his singular career. He has appointed John Graham, a special deputy sheriff, and that eccentric gentleman, with his never-it was and his multitude of short-cuts, is an almost daily visitor at the New Court-House.

John Graham is one of the eccentric characters of the city. He is a man of many short-cuts, and he is an almost daily visitor at the New Court-House.

The days of Graham's active practice are well nigh spent, however. He has only appeared in the courts sporadically during the past ten years, but his appearance has never failed to cause a flutter of excitement because of the interesting character of the case with which he was connected, and because of his peculiar personality and latitudes.

It is Graham's person and the way he is of showing it that invites the attention of the public. He maintains the fashions of his youth, when he was a well-known lawyer and sports a bowler collar and a bowler tie, which he wears with the same pride as the Elizabethan ruff.

He has a large head, thick, curly hair, and a large nose. He is a man of many short-cuts, and he is an almost daily visitor at the New Court-House.

"NO. 818" CLOSING ITS DOORS.
New York's Most Famous Gambling Hell Is Driven Out of Business.

That famous hall of the farthings at 818 Broadway, where for thirty years the clink of every chip has been heard at all hours of the day and night and where immense sums of money have changed hands over the green cloth, has closed its doors.

This action has not been caused by any change of the police or reform associations, but only by the fact that the building was too old and too dilapidated to be used as a gambling hall.

The disaster occurred in the factory of the Moran Bottling Company, 110 East One Hundred and Twenty-fourth street, at 7:40 o'clock this morning.

At that hour the workmen heard a heavy explosion, which shook the building from cellar to roof and shattered the western wall.

They ran into the rear room on the first floor, and there found foreman Christie Ackerly, lying dead on the floor and his son, Christie Ackerly, Jr., dying beside him.

The floor was strewn with marble dust and the walls were covered with splinters of wood. The gas was in the air, and the workmen were in a state of panic.

Foreman Ackerly had been in the employ of the company for over twenty years. He had charge of the six great brass cylinders called generators. He looked after the gauges which indicated the pressure of the gas.

One of the cylinder heads, about two feet in diameter, had been blown from the stout copper fastenings, flying low the unfortunate father and son.

As soon as the workmen recovered their senses they carried the foreman's body into the office and sent for a doctor, but it was too late. Ackerly had been dead some minutes before the call was sent out.

His son, though bleeding and unconscious, still breathed.

that the body would have to remain where it was until the coroner had made his report. The coroner was notified at once, but has not as yet been in his appearance.

This is the first accident of the kind that has ever happened at this place. A similar explosion occurred in a downtown factory some two years ago, but without fatal results.

AFTER CLAN-NA-GAEL MEDALS.
Miscellaneous Smash Col. Moran's Window but Are Frightened Away.

Count Col. James Moran of the Sixth South Regiment is worthy this morning. In the show window of Col. Moran's store at 714 Third Avenue, twelve large and small medals and large silver cups were to be competed for this morning at James A. Wood by the clan-na-gael organizations of this city.

About 11:30 o'clock last night an attempt was made to steal these medals and cups. A brick was hurled through the window and a large window on the fourth-story street side, before they could be taken away.

Col. Moran offers a reward of $500 for information as to who did this. He is a man of many short-cuts, and he is an almost daily visitor at the New Court-House.

Stanley's Wedding to Be a Notable Event of To-Morrow.

The Pope's Ill Health—More of the Postmen's Strike.

STANLEY, July 11.—A wedding which will be the wedding of Stanley and Miss Tennant, to take place to-morrow, are completed and the event promises to be one of the most notable of its kind ever occurring in the old Abbey.

The bride and groom, too, if everything works properly, can enjoy the felicity of leaving the economy performed over again as often as they choose for three photographs are to be set in the Abbey when the marriage takes place.

The rank for cards of admission to the Abbey has continued, and there will be a tremendous throng of people in and about the venerable building at the hour of the wedding.

The wedding presents received cover the widest imaginable range in kind and value, and many of them have come from people of whom neither Mr. Stanley nor his bride ever heard before.

Mr. Stanley, immediately after his marriage, will proceed to Scotland, and subsequently to Switzerland and Paris.

From the Continent the happy pair will go to Wales, starting at Cadogan Lodge, the residence of the bride's mother.

During the tour in Wales Mr. Stanley will receive the freedom of the cities of Cardiff and Swansea.

In November the Stanleys, accompanied by Mrs. Tennant, will sail for New York, where they will be joined by Countess Tennant, the bride's only brother.

The party will make the tour of America and then return to England.

The Precarious Health of the Pope.
STANLEY, July 11.—The health of the Pope is reported to be so precarious that several American prelates who have returned from Rome, en route home, have returned to the Eternal City without taking leave of the Holy Father.

EXTRA
300 GIRLS IN PERIL.

Fire and Panic in a Brooklyn Jute Bagging Factory.

One Fireman and a Boy Badly Burned.

Six Girls Injured by Falling Down the Stairs.

The huge jute bagging mill of L. Waterbury & Co., which occupies the entire block in Williamsburg bounded by Ten Eyck street, Nassau street, Waterbury street and South Dumont avenue burst into a mass of flame at 8:30 o'clock this morning.

In the buildings at the time were three hundred girls and over one hundred men. It is simply short of miraculous that no lives were lost.

As soon as the flames were discovered three alarms were sent out and all available engines in the vicinity hurried to the scene.

The sight shortly after the fire broke out was one that the crowds of lookers-on will remember vividly.

The immense spinning mill seemed to be literally one mass of flame, and the picker mill, which adjoins it, was burning fiercely.

From the bell doors of the spinning mill screaming, panic-stricken girls came rushing out by the score.

The firemen worked bravely. Suddenly when the flames were at their worst, a girl appeared at one of the second story windows.

For a moment she hesitated and then jumped.

She escaped unharmed.

Her example was followed by seven other girls all of whom escaped without serious injuries.

The fire raged fiercely in the upper stories of the two big spinning mills which were situated on either side of the picker mill. In these two mills most of the girls were employed.

The flames crept up the stairways, and for a time shut off that way of escape, but as the streams of water were poured on the egresses were temporarily safe, and the hundreds of employees were trotted out.

In the meantime the picker-mill was a mass of flames, but the majority of the firemen were kept at work in the spinning-mills where life was threatened.
